every inch of the way. He has ordered the militia home and has determined to fight the matter out alone, without the aid of troops, an exhibition of nerve that at least ought to command the admiration of Kentuckians. The first word of the Governor's determination came a little before 2 o'clock this afternoon at the close of a conference attended by 250 Republican leaders from all parts of the State, It was in the shape of the following proclama-

"The excitement recently prevailing in this city having to some extent subsided and there appearing now to be no necessity for the General Assembly to remain in London, I do hereby by this proclamation reconvene the Legislature in Frankfort, Ky., on Feb. 12 1900, at 12 o'clock noon.

W. S. TAYLOR, Governor of Kentucky." Simultaneous with the issue of this proclamation the orders were issued to the commanders of the National Guard to begin the dispersal of their men and in less than an hour one company had started on a train for home. To-night five more companies went and in the morning the rest will leave the city by special train with the exception perhaps of one or two companies which will be retained to guard the State House and Capitol Square. After issuing the proclamation, Gov.

of one or two companies which will be retained to guard the State House and Captol Square. After issuing the proclamaton, tow. Taylor spent an hour or so in has offeet taking with his friends. Then he went home and including an appointment with the newspaper correspondents to see him at his home at 6 o'cleck. At that hour he occused himself from being seen personally and through one of the attaches of the Executive Building he gave out the following statement, explaining that it embodied everything that he would say under any circumstances:

"I have only this to say: After mature deciliberation and conference with my friends from every section of the State. I have confided to allow this controversy to take its ductories, vigorously contesting every inch of the ground and uphobling the rights of the people to the uttermost. If these rights be destroyed the responsibility for that destruction must rest with those who sit in judgment. It is due to say that the eminent gentemen, my friends, who secured the propositions resulting from the Louisville conference acted in perfect good faith from the highest motives of patriotism and did the very best they could."

The proclamation issued by the Governor took the Democratic completely by surprise and up to the present time they don't know where they stand or what they will done have been been been been decided to allow the control to the state louises and the state property, which is the bone of content of the control of the state House and the State Property, which is the bone of contention, unless they do come here. Foundation of the state House and the State Property, which is the bone of contention of many way later that the cannot guarantee them protection in Frankfort and therefore on first thought they does not they cannot by any possibility for the activation of the proposition of the state House and the State House of from any way liter the state House of from an refused even to attend the funeral of Senator Goebel on the ground that they feared arrest. There has never been any danger of their arrest, it is now said, but they are pressing the proceedings in the Circuit Court to have the restraining order on the Governor made permanent.

Now, here comes the Governor, not only assuring them that he will not interfere with their meeting, but inviting them to come and sending home the militia, of whom they have professed fear, and they say they won't come. It will be interesting to see whether they will continue to press for the permanency of their injunction now, and whether in view of the facts Judge Cantrill will grant their application. Gov. Taylor's prociamn ion was issued to-day after a conference with 250 Republican leaders of the State. The Sun said this morning that these men were the leaders who, by telegram and by letter, have been urging Gov. Taylor not to back down and not under any circumstances to sign the Louisylpe conference agreestances to sign the Louisville conference agree-ment, because it was nothing more nor less than a complete surrender, not only of his own individual rights, but of the rights of the Re-publicans who elected him by a majority of from twenty thousand to thirty thousand. publicans who elected him by a majority of from twenty thou-and to thirty thou-and. These men were telegraphed for by Gov. Taylor on Friday afternoon, and they began getting into town early this morning. Nearly all of them were on hand by 10 o'clock, and they were levited into the Senate chamber in the State House. A little later the Governor. Secretary of State Powers, Hudson Thatcher of the Attorney-General's oillee, Gen. Dan Lindsay and Private Secretary Todd, left the Executive building and went to the State House, where they entered the Senate chamber. There was great cheering. It was announced that the session would be an executive one and the doors were all locked and outsiders were excluded. While nobody got in, a good deal that took place inside got out. Speeches were made by more than a score of the men present. They were all one way and they advised the the Governor, as one Kentuckian put it, 'to stick till hell iroze over,'

Then the Governor made a speech. He explained all that had happened and the full terms of the Louisville agreement, after which is submitted two preparations. One were the

Then the Governor made a speech. He explained all that had happened and the full terms of the Louisville agreement, after which he submitted two propositions. One was that he should sign the agreement, give up his office and get for the Republicans in return a fair election law under which a man would be permitted to hold the offlice to which he was elected by the people. The second was to send the troops home, reconvene the Legislature at Frankfort and await results. After this there were three or four short speeches advocating the signing of the agreement in case certain changes were made in it. But when a vote was taken on this proposition it was unantimous against the toverner having anything at all to do with the agreement. The second vote advised nim to follow the course that he later in the day concluded to pursue.

This nation of the Governor seems to leave the situation, from the Republican standpoint, exactly where it was before Goebel was shot. At that time the Contest Committee in the Legislature, composed of eleven Democrats and one Republican, had prepared its report in favor of Senator Goebel and he was to have been declared elected the very day of the shooting. According to the Republican idea the Legislature must meet now and their report must be made and formally adouted declaring Goebel elected and Beekham his legitimate successor. Then Mr. Beekham must make a demand for the office, and his right to it will be contested in the courts that are partisan and that, without question, will give him the seat.

From the Democratic standpoint, however, things are very different. After the shooting of Senator Goebel and before his death the Democratic Legislature met twice, each time declaring a quorum present and each time declaring doebel elected. After these seasons

Democratic Legislature met twice, each time declaring a quorum present and each time adopting the report of the Contest Committee declaring Goebel elected. After these sessions Goebel was sworn in, and after toolsels, death Beckham was sworn in as Goverhor. They insist that all these actions were legal and that Beckham is now Governor and no further action on their part is necessary. Carrying out their idea, Mr. Beckham, after he heard of the decision of Gov. Taylor, wrote the following message and sent it to the Democratic members of the Legislature:

After hearing this read the Democratic members got together and they passed the following resolutions:

"Whereas, One W. S. Committee to Find Out Whether It Will Be Safe to Go to Frankfort.

LOUISVILLE, Kv., Feb. 10.-The Democratic part of the Legislature met here today with a working quorum in both Beckham. Senatorelect Blackburn and three Justices of the Court of Appeals were also here, showing that, so far as the Democrats could control it, this city was made the seat of Government. In the house in the morning several bills were reported on by the Committee on Municipalities and then an adjournment was taken to 3 o'clock, The Senate also adjourned to the same hour. When they convened again the message from Gov. Beckham, referred to in THE SUN's Frankfort despatch, was read. Representative Renick offered a joint resolution to have a committee investigate into the proclamation issued by one "W. S. Taylor" and ascertain if it would be safe and advisable for the Legislature to return to Frankfort. This being a joint resolution it went over until Monday. It is likely the Democrats will remain here for some days. It is felt here that Gov. Taylor took a middle course between his two sets of advisors, the Republicans who joined in Monday night's conference and the Republicans and anti-Goebel Democrats who held that such action would be a surrender which he could not afford to make. However, as the troops are being sent home and the matter, being leit to the courts and Legislature, the result is practically the same as if the agreement had been signed.

The Arguments the Democrats Will Make in Opposition to Interference. CINCINNATI, Feb. 10.- Attorneys James A Scott, John F. They had copies of the petition, which reviews the election fully, contending that the Republican candidates for the six minor offices

Republican candidates for the six minor offices were elected.

Mr. Scott, who will take a leading part in the defence of the Democrats, said he did not believe the application would be granted.

"We shall contend," he said, "that the State Board is legally constituted, and that it is empowered to reject illegal ballots. It has the power to determine, in a contest, by fair and invarial investigation, who the successful candidates are in an election for minor State offices, and this prerogative cannot be taken away from it unless the law is repealed. We shall claim the want of court jurisdiction on the ground that the federal court has no province in the premises. Our third contention will be want of merit in the application, as we believe the applicants have no standing in any court."

Judge Scott said that if he was giving his version of the petition he would say that it was "an incorporation of the speeches that were made by former Gov. W. O. Bradley in the campaign."

DID A FRIEND SHOOT GOEBEL?

Story That He Was Wounded Mortally by by Mistake in a Little Plot. LONDON, Ry., Feb. 10. - Senator Howard tells a story here to-night regarding the shooting of Senator Goebel which has been heard by others. He says he was in the office building to the left of the State House the morning Goebel was shot; that Judge Yost, one of the leading counsel for Gov. Taylor, ran in and said a man had just been shot down by the fountain. Yost said the man who was walking near Goebel drew a pistol with his left hand, threw his hand behind him and fired. He then put the pistol under his arm, as if trying to prevent any person from seeing the He says the Republicans had been warned that the Democrats were going to make a new move on that day, but they were not in-formed what it was. He cites the fact that Goebel

Further, it was reported that Senator Goebel winked at Eph Lillard when he came into his room after the shooting. It is also cited that several physicians have said that the bullet entered Goebel's left side, and that the wound on the right side is a jagged one, as if the bullet came out there.

Senator Howard firmly believes the shooting of Goedel was done for effect, and that the person who did the shooting, intending to shoot without killing him, failed to shoot where he intended and gave Goedel a mortal wound. This story has caused much excitement here, as there are so many circumstances which seem to corroborate it.

Democrets to Raise Money to Defend the Men Indicted in the Federal Courts.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Feb. 10. -At a meeting of ocal Democrats to-day it was decided to raise money and employ attorneys to defend the Election law violators who are to appear before United States Judge Evans in Louisville on Monday for trial. There are about fortyfive of these cases growing out of the recent election, and all of the alleged violators are Democrats. At the election previous to this one, a number of Democrats were arrested charged with intimidating and defrauding the people at the poils, but Republicans, including Judge George Denny, Jr., went before the Federal Grand Jury and asked that the cases be dismissed.

Every crime known to the traditional ward heeler was practised here in November and thousands of people lost their votes. The revolutionary methods resorted to by the Democrats has revealed to the Republicans the uselessness of giving quarter.

PLOT VICTIM SHOT DOWN.

THE AMOROSOS DECREED THAT SCIEVERAFANO SHOULD DIE. Fortune-Teller Informed Mrs. Amorose

That He Was the Man Who Stole Her

Daughter's Dowry - Fired Upon Four

Times in a Dark Street-May Not Live.

Because a fortune-teller told Mrs. Amoroso that her former boarder, Salvatore Seleverafano, had stolen her money, she was convinced that Salvatore was the thief for whom she and all her family had been looking for months. She told her husband, Dominico, what the fortune-teller said, as well as her sons, Guiseppe and Antonio, and her son-in-law, Felipe Boniface. They all believed that the words of the seer were a revelation from Heaven, and the sons and the son-in-law decided that the thief should be killed. Scieverafano, the two Amorosos and Poniface met on Friday night, and in Leonard street Scieverafano was shot four times, once in the chest, once in the right arm, once in the face and once in the neck. He is now in the Hudson street hospital and may die. He says two of the shots were fired by Antonio Amoroso and two by Felipe Boniface. It all happened because Concetta, Mrs. Amoroso's daughter, had to have a dowry when a young man should be found fit to be her husband. In due time, Concetta was told that she should be thinking about taking a husband, and her parents let it be known that she should not go to the young man who won her without a marriage portion. Then the whole family began to work to put aside money for Concetta. All the money they earned went to the dower fund. Finally, feeling that they could afford a better home, they moved to 205 Elizabeth street. It cost more to live there, but Salvatore Scieverafano, who came over from Sicily, wanted lodgings, and the Amorosos, who knew him in the old country, took him in.

as a suitor for Concetta, and they were married last November. In four years the family had saved up about $300, which was kept in a lit-tle bag under Concetta's pillow. One night just before her marriage somebody stole the money.

Concetta took her husband to live with her family and then there was no room for Scieveratiano. He found lookings elsewhere and the Amorosos say that it was not long before he appeared in fine clothes, stopped work and wore a gold watch and chain. The Amorosos suspected then that Scieveratano had stolen Concetta's dowry. They accused him of it and he not only denied it, but said he had given his savings to Mrs. Amoroso and that she owed him $10.

The four men met in a saloon in Elizabeth street, near Spring, on Friday night and drank often together. Then Bondace, as the police get the story, proposed a walk. Seleveratano doesn't know the streets he was led through, but he was finally brought, he told the Coroner in his antemortem statement, to a street that ran along the river and then up by an engine house. Just after the party turned into the street in which the shooting took place. Bondace told Seleveralano to make the sign of the cross. Seleveralano to make the sign of the cross. Seleveralano asked for a reason for the command. He was told again to make the sign of the cross and this time he said nothing, for his companions had stopped in the sandow of the building at 13 Leonard street, which is only two or three doors west of the police station. Then, he says, Bondace pulled out a pistol and fired twice. One shot hit Seleveralano in the right arm just above the ellow, and the other in the chest. As soon as Bondace had fired the second shot, he says, Anonio Amoroso fired twice, both builded hitting him. Seleveralano lell. Sengt. This fact was decided on recently, after a conference which Water Commissioner Martin had with Mayor Hart. There are undoubtedly many reasons for the taking of this step, but the chief one is supposed to be for the purpose of saving money. Gen. Martin says that he is of the opinion that the ice can be purchased this year much cheaper than it can be cut by city employees.

It's a little thing to have that uneasy feeling in the stomach after eating. Sour risings and belching are also reckoned little things. Yet these little things are among the minor marks of a disordered condition of the stomach and organs of nutrition and digestion. EXCHANGE SHOTS OVER GARDINER. Mr. Cosby Says He Should Be Removed-

Mr. O' Reilly Is Reminded of a Fly Fable. Deputy Attorney General Cosby, who was specially appointed to assist Deputy Attorney General Coyne in the prosecution of the City Club's charges against District Attorney Gardiner, announced yesterday that the prosecution had decided to file additional specifications, Mr. Cosby issued the following statement:

"Since the bringing of the original charges, many new matters have come to our attention which confirm our view that the District Attorney, Major Gardiner, should be removed. We are satisfied with the case as it stands and will there ore not avail ourselves of the opportunity offered to file additional specifications."

Col. Gardiner was busy with Molineux mat ters yesterday. He read the foregoing, but contented himself with saying that Mr Cosby "was a very young man". Assistant District Attorney O'Heilly was at Col. Gardiner's desk and remarked that Mr. Cosby and himself were about the same are.

that Mr. Cosby and himself were about the same age.

"It would be injudicious for any member of Col. Gardiner's staif to express an opinion on this matter that might be construed as an opinion of the District Attorney's," he said. I can't help but wooder whether the expression of such removal is based upon long and extended experience at the bar, or is the vaporing of a youth whose diploma is yet damp with the ink of the law school. The law of our land is based upon a Constitution which says that no man shall be prejudged. Our system of trial is based upon evidence by sworn statement and does not intend that a person should be put upon his defence upon any unsworn charge or complaint made by irresponsible persons, not for not giving a million dollars to charity. ENGLAND BUYS HORSES HERE. Contracts Given at New Orleans for the Purchase of 1,000 Head of Wiry Animals. NEW ORLEANS, La., Feb. 9,-The expected order of the British War Office for the purchase and shipment of horses to South Africa came yesterday. Heretofore, the purchases have been confined altogether to mules, of which 20,000 have already been purchased and are on the way to Africa. When Col Stevens arrived here last week his announced that the British Government would probably purchase horses, as they would probably purchase horses, as they were needed for the troops in the Transvaal. The definite order came yesterday, when contracts were let for the purchase of the first batch of 1,000. The horses being purchased are between fifteen and fifteen and a half hands high, of the tough, wiry variety, well suited for rough riders' work in the Transvaal. As near as possible the Britishers are buying the kind of horses selected by Col. Roosevelt for his Rough Riders. The contract was made at $84 a head, which dealers think is very low.

The horses are for eavalry purposes and will The horses are for cavalry purposes and will broken before being sent away. The mules be broken before being sent away. The mules shipped were simply for transportation and were all green mules. The horse shipping bureau will be entirely separate from that handling the mules and the arrivals will be kept apart. The Montezuma and Magician, now loading here, will take mules, but the next transport to them will load with horses. Much care is needed with the horses. They cannot be packed as tightly as mules, and a vessel which carries 1,400 mules will not transport safely more than 500 horses.

MOUNT VERNON, N. Y., Feb. 10,-A number of New York weekly pictorial publications cannot now be sold on the New Haven Bailroad. The news company which handles publications on the road has received orders from the railroad company no longer to offer them for sale either on trains or at the station newsstands. on trains or at the station newsstands.

The action taken by the railroad company was due to many complaints. The publications in question have been largely devoted to the exploitation of so-called racy articles and jokes. One of the barred publications has made a specialty of illustrations.

About a month ago the railroad company concluded that in the interest of public escency it was its dury to act in the matter. The order issued to the news company includes also all publications of a character similar to those proscribed. There are so many of these and the number is increasing so rapidly that the news company already has to exercise an extensive consorship.

The scientific combination of healthful drugs in Ripans Tabules often proves effective even in cases where many other remedies have failed. A Philadelphia (Pa.) lady, in a statement below, gives the Tabules credit for curing her permanently: "I wish to express my thanks to you for the good Ripans Tabules have done me." is her first grateful expression. "I was troubled with catarrh of the stomach, in ligestion and constipation for the last ten years. I was so constipated that I had to take two injections daily. I could not sleep at night, lost my appetite, and what I did eat did not stay on my stomach. I was in misery. I consulted physicians and tried patent medicines but nothing seemed to cure. A short while ago a friend advised me to try Ripans Tabules. I had not much faith in them as I had taken so much medicine which did me no good. Still, I obtained some and took them, and was agreeably surprised at the result. I kept on taking them and am now regular in my habits and enjoying good health. I feel like a different woman and would not be without them. I write this testimonial hoping others suffering the way I did may obtain permanent relief by using the Tabules."
